WATERWORKS SUPERINTENDENT
Likely to Be Appointed by Board of Aldermen This Evening—Who'll Get the Place?

The March meeting of the board of aldermen will be held this evening and the question on the streets the last day or so has been "What will they do in regard to the superintendent of waterworks?"

The republican majority on the board failed to confirm Mayor Dunn's appointment of Henderson S. Moulton a couple of months ago, and at the expiration of the necessary time, the mayor having made no second nomination, selected E. S. Russ, who declined the appointment the following day. Since that time no selection has been made, and Mr. Moulton has stayed in office.

Lately, however, there have been rumors current that a man had been found to take the place and that a change would be made soon. With only a seven months' term to fill, and another election coming in the fall, the job, at the salary it pays, does not hold out very alluring prospects.

Among others whose names have been mentioned for the place is Frank L. Powell, who has always been a good worker for the republican party. Mr. Powell stated Saturday to The Bulletin correspondent that he was a receptive candidate and would not refuse the position if it came his way. There is undoubtedly an effort being made to have a republican put into the office. On the other hand, many feel that the party would make a grave mistake in so doing, as there has been a sort of "gentlemen's agreement" regarding the positions of superintendent of the waterworks and superintendent of the pumping station, one incumbent having held the day night both early for many years, and reprisals would undoubtedly be in order if the democrats regain control next fall.

Harbingers.
More people are noticed on the streets, particularly Sunday afternoons, a sure sign that better weather for outdoor exercise is at hand. Then the newboys who congregate on Railroad street Sunday mornings are busy with marbles and tops, while waiting for their papers, another sure sign that spring is coming.

Windham Rifle Team Defeats Co. L.
Team.
The Windham Rifle club is maintaining interest in that branch of sport in preparation for next fall's hunting. Several meets have been held recently and others are under arrangement. The latest shoot was held on the range at the armory on Pleasant street Friday night, both early for many Windham and one from South Coventry, reinforced by a couple of cracks from Company L of this city. The Windham team won by a score of 473 to 431.

The individual scores were as follows: Coventry—Small 128, Edgerton 62, Gillis 127, Cochrane 114, Windham—Naason 123, Childs 95, Adams 122, Cady 133.

The case of Israel Bernstein vs. The State, which was to have been held before Curtis Dean, Esq., Saturday morning, was continued until today at 2 p. m., on the promise of the defendant to pay the bill and costs at that time. The case of Cashkeov vs. Berkovitz, set down for this morning, is continued to the afternoon. In which time a settlement is expected to be made.

CITY COURT CASES.
Trespassers on Railroad Property Permitted to Leave Town—Economic Husband Found.

Frank Pietro, Mike Durbek and John Herold, all of whom gave their homes as Hartford, pleaded guilty to trespass on railroad property in the police court Saturday morning and received a sentence of 30 days in jail each. They were allowed to go, however, on condition of their leaving town at once.

At the same session Walter Broadhurst received a sentence of 60 days in jail after pleading guilty to non-support. When the court asked him what he did with the money he earned, Broadhurst said he was saving it up.

Block of Wood His Weapon.
Alvin Pearl, employed by the J. M. Tatem company in Windham, was arrested Saturday and will appear in court this morning to answer to the charge of striking a fellow employee named Nicholas Bashura on the head with a block of wood, following some hot words between the two.

Mother's 100th Birthday.
Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Chappell leave today (Monday) for Providence, where they will assist in the 100th birthday anniversary of Mr. Chappell's mother. Mr. Chappell will carry out his usual duties on his home late Friday night to make a cider raid was told in the town court Saturday morning by State Police Officer George E. White. The officers, including Deputy Sheriff John M. Besette.

White was arraigned on a charge of having conspired to kidnap John M. Bridgman and with resisting arrest. White pleaded not guilty to the first count and guilty to resisting arrest, but cut probable cause when holding him for trial at the superior court, and Deputy Judge James N. Tucker fixed his bonds at $2,000, in default of which he was taken to the jail at Brooklyn.

Each of the four officers mentioned told at the hearing of what transpired at the time White and the officers reached the house, which is in a secluded spot in the southern part of the borough, in an automobile, had invaded the cellar and removed five of the nine barrels of cider there before the trouble started.

While the state officers were getting the cider out, Deputy Sheriff Besette had gone after a heavy team wagon to carry away the seizure and was just returning with the team and wagon when White and the officers appeared, flourishing a single barrel shotgun and ordering with many oaths that the officers immediately leave the premises or be shot.

White leveled the weapon at the officers, all of whom were armed, refused to surrender, and threatened to shoot. At this time Officer Wheeler was in the cellar, finishing up his work. He heard the click of the hammer on White's gun and he was snatched back, and the answering click of Officer Jackson's automatic revolver, he says. Taking only time to slip a cartridge into the chamber of his own revolver, completing its full magazine load, he came from the cellar as Officer Jackson was asking White for time to get the automobile out of the yard.

At this time Officer Bridgman and Deputy Sheriff Besette, as well as Jackson, were ordered out. White's position was anything but enjoyable. White seemed infuriated. While an attempt was being made to start the engine of the automobile, an attempt that was really a stall to gain time—Officer Wheeler worked the engine of White's car and finally into range of action. He leaped upon White and bore him to the ground, jamming his head into the ground as Officer Jackson closed in, and as Officer Wheeler in getting possession of the weapon, which these officers charged in court, White tried to fire the gun, which was cocked and loaded. An extra shell was forced from White's hand.

White appeared very downcast at the hearing. When asked if he cared to make a statement to the court, he merely said that he was "too quick" and that his intention was only to frighten the officers away.

In addition to what they told about the case, the state officers told the court that White had, during the time he had them covered with the gun, wanted to know "which one of them was going to shoot him." He had given him away," for he wanted to shoot him. This referred to Lewis Simoncini, a young Italian who has

All But One of the Liquor Raid Cases Continued a Week—Putnam Express Case Not Brought Up—Oliver White, Who Threatened to Kill State Police, in Jail in Default of $2,000 Bonds.

The cases of all but one of those arrested in the state police liquor raid here Friday night were continued until next Saturday at 9 a. m., after those charged with violations of the law had been put to plea before Deputy Judge James N. Tucker in court Saturday morning.

Deputy Judge James N. Tucker presided at the session, which was long drawn out, and which was attended by an audience that jammed the courtroom.

William Welch of Attawapung pleaded not guilty to counts charging him with the sale of cider on Feb. 23 (two sales) to Lewis Simoncini, a detective who has been operating in town for nearly two months. A jug of cider and more than a dozen bottles of Jamaica ginger, 35 per cent alcohol, were found in Welch's place when they raided Welch's place at Attawapung Friday night, but nothing was said about that raid in court Saturday morning and produced John Doyle as a witness for $500 for his appearance next Saturday.

Natalo Ziccarro, a resident on Furnace street, pleaded not guilty to selling liquor to Lewis Simoncini, and to keeping with intent to sell. The court fixed his bond at $500, which he was unable to furnish, and went to the jail. Miss Annie Doyle and Ziccarro's house in Friday night's raid. Antonio Mazzerelli, charged with keeping with intent to sell, this being a second offense, was also committed to jail. He was arrested on March 14 of last year, a license year in this town, pleaded not guilty. He said that the wine seized at his house, 23 o'clock Friday night was kept for his own use. He could not furnish bonds of $500 for his release until trial of his case next Saturday.

Madellana Mazzerelli, charged with keeping with intent to sell, was also committed to jail. She was arrested early Saturday morning and was her self locked up. Later she was also charged with violation of the liquor laws, and was committed to jail.

Philip Robarge, 26, pleaded not guilty to procuring a drink of whiskey for Simoncini. His case was continued until Saturday, his bonds fixed at $100.

As to the seizure of the cargo of the pony express, bringing orders from Putnam for distribution by Eli Dagenais, agent, nothing was said in court Saturday, beyond the fact of the continuing of the case until next Saturday. It is anticipated that this case will develop some technical points.

At an early morning session of the town court, Cornelius Kelleher, for having been intoxicated and for breach of the peace, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, his case was valued at $12.14. Kelleher was arrested in the Daville section of the town Friday night by Constable Hosea Greene.

WHITE WAS "TOO QUICK."
His Excuse in Court for Drawing Gun on State Police—Enraged Against Spotter.

A dramatic story of the manner in which they were threatened with being shot, and how they were taken to the jail, was told in the town court Saturday morning by State Police Officer George E. White. The officers, including Deputy Sheriff John M. Besette.

White was arraigned on a charge of having conspired to kidnap John M. Bridgman and with resisting arrest. White pleaded not guilty to the first count and guilty to resisting arrest, but cut probable cause when holding him for trial at the superior court, and Deputy Judge James N. Tucker fixed his bonds at $2,000, in default of which he was taken to the jail at Brooklyn.

Each of the four officers mentioned told at the hearing of what transpired at the time White and the officers reached the house, which is in a secluded spot in the southern part of the borough, in an automobile, had invaded the cellar and removed five of the nine barrels of cider there before the trouble started.

While the state officers were getting the cider out, Deputy Sheriff Besette had gone after a heavy team wagon to carry away the seizure and was just returning with the team and wagon when White and the officers appeared, flourishing a single barrel shotgun and ordering with many oaths that the officers immediately leave the premises or be shot.

White leveled the weapon at the officers, all of whom were armed, refused to surrender, and threatened to shoot. At this time Officer Wheeler was in the cellar, finishing up his work. He heard the click of the hammer on White's gun and he was snatched back, and the answering click of Officer Jackson's automatic revolver, he says. Taking only time to slip a cartridge into the chamber of his own revolver, completing its full magazine load, he came from the cellar as Officer Jackson was asking White for time to get the automobile out of the yard.

At this time Officer Bridgman and Deputy Sheriff Besette, as well as Jackson, were ordered out. White's position was anything but enjoyable. White seemed infuriated. While an attempt was being made to start the engine of the automobile, an attempt that was really a stall to gain time—Officer Wheeler worked the engine of White's car and finally into range of action. He leaped upon White and bore him to the ground, jamming his head into the ground as Officer Jackson closed in, and as Officer Wheeler in getting possession of the weapon, which these officers charged in court, White tried to fire the gun, which was cocked and loaded. An extra shell was forced from White's hand.

White appeared very downcast at the hearing. When asked if he cared to make a statement to the court, he merely said that he was "too quick" and that his intention was only to frighten the officers away.

In addition to what they told about the case, the state officers told the court that White had, during the time he had them covered with the gun, wanted to know "which one of them was going to shoot him." He had given him away," for he wanted to shoot him. This referred to Lewis Simoncini, a young Italian who has been here getting evidence of violations of the excise laws during the past few weeks. Simoncini was with the officers raiding White, but in the darkness he did not seem to plan to plan him out, which is probably to White's advantage.

White's arrest is one of the most sensational that has occurred here in years. In court he was not charged with sales or with keeping with intent to sell, the developments that caused the arrest overhanging minor considerations.

TEACHER'S COMPENSATION.
Commissioner Donohue of Norwich, Hears Case of Estate of Mrs. W. N. Arnold, Who Died From Pneumonia.

In the office of Judge A. G. Bill, counsel for the claimants, there was a hearing before Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue, M. D., of Norwich, Saturday afternoon, relative to the claim for compensation arising out of the death of Mrs. W. N. Arnold early in the winter.

Mrs. Arnold was a teacher in the East Brooklyn school on the West Side. Her death was due to pneumonia and the claim is set up that her health became impaired because the school building was not properly heated.

The town of Brooklyn is protected by compensation insurance and the company that wrote it was represented at Saturday's hearing by Attorney Pierce of Waterbury.

Witnesses in number were called by both sides and testified at the hearing as to the manner in which the building was heated. Among those who testified were Miss Annie Doyle and Miss Nellie Keech, teachers in the school, and some of the pupils who study there. Dr. F. P. Todd was another witness.

The claim, which, of course, is contested, amounts, it is stated, to about $3,000, and is one of very special interest to Commissioner Donohue reserved his decision.

HAD 2,500 VISITORS.
New Quarters of Danielson Trust Company Inspected and Admired Saturday.

Estimates of the number of persons who visited the new quarters of the Danielson Trust company in the Bradley building Saturday afternoon and evening at the formal opening run as high as 2,500. From the time the doors were opened at 3 o'clock, until after the hour advertised for closing, 3 o'clock, there was a steady stream of visitors, the rooms being well filled most of the time.

President J. Arthur Atwood, Vice President A. Jacobs and members of the board of directors assisted Treasurer Clifford H. Sturges and the force of the bank in receiving the guests. St. Angelo's orchestra of Providence played throughout the afternoon and evening and there was a profusion of flowers to add to the beauty and attractiveness of the finely equipped quarters. There were refreshments for the ladies and souvenirs for the gentlemen, pretty and useful gifts that will be retained by those who received them.

Practically every visitor expressed admiration of the arrangement, equipment and furnishings of the new bank. It is easily one of the finest in any New England city and is a credit to the bank. The floors are of a colored fibre composition of great resiliency. Fixtures, including partitions, desks, and numerous other articles of equipment throughout the bank, are entirely of art metal, done in a dark olive or mahogany finish. The table tops are of a medium green shade of the battleship linoleum. The ceilings are of steel. The indirect lighting system is used and highly satisfactory results obtained.

The corner entrance to the bank opens into a roomy lobby, which is equipped with all conveniences for the convenience of the ladies and gentlemen of the bank. To the left of the entrance is the president's room and to the right is a retiring room for ladies. The lobby is a fine and especially built. The fine and especially built. The fine and especially built. The fine and especially built.

The space reserved for the clerical force of the bank is ample and well lighted through the line of plate glass windows down the south side of the building.

The directors' room, which is very attractively furnished, is at the rear of the bank and reached by a broad passageway along at the north side of the building. Near the directors' room are coupon booths, where persons who have left deposit boxes in the bank may retrieve with their valuable papers and do so in the utmost comfort and privacy.

The whole arrangement of the bank has been carefully thought out and worked out and the result is certainly deserving of winning for the officials the heartiest congratulations.
